

ABOUT CROATIAN STUDIES

Croatian Studies at the University of Zagreb was launched in 1992. Today, higher education in Croatian Studies takes place in nine departments:

- Demography and the Croatian Diaspora
- Educational Sciences and Teacher Training
- Philosophy
- Croatian Latinity
- Communicology
- Croatology
- History
- Psychology
- Sociology

Research and teaching at Croatian Studies focuses on traditional and contemporary cultural, identity, humanities and social issues related to the Republic of Croatia, Croatian people and migration, such as cultural, political intellectual history and reality; media public and personal communications; the activities of social groups; human experience and behavior; education and training; language development; open political, cultural, social and demographic issues of national, regional or European interest.

WHY STUDY AT CROATIAN STUDIES

- The Agency for Science and Higher Education, in co-operation with foreign experts, declared in 2015 that Croatian Studies was the best rated institution of higher education in the social and humanities fields.
- Teaching at Croatian Studies takes place in smaller groups of students, which enables professors to clearly define the focus of their teaching, adapting to the interests and needs of the students while recognising their attitudes.
- Numerous students at Croatian Studies are involved in extracurricular professional activities - from drama groups and student associations, through participation in scientific research projects, to work in the media, state institutions and the business sector.
